For many Americans, every paycheck counts. If you should face an extended work leave due to illness or injury, would you be able to keep your bills paid and cover your daily living expenses? Disability insurance provides an easy and convenient source of financial security and peace of mind when it matters most.

New York Life Group Benefits Solutions Disability coverage pays a portion of your covered earnings when you become disabled and can't work due to a covered illness or injury. This can help you keep up with your bills, maintain a savings and cover everyday expenses while you're out of work, so you'll still have a source of income while you're away from work. Think of it as a form of financial protection. A disability is considered an illness or injury that prevents you from earning your salary.

Voiceover:

With disability coverage, you'll receive a percentage of your salary for a specified period of time, and subject to a specified maximum, after you meet any applicable elimination or waiting period.

Benefits for certain illnesses may be limited. Some serious injuries may not be covered. For example, self-inflicted injuries are not covered. Refer to your policy document for the definition of disability/disabled.

Payments come directly to you or anyone you designate and can be spent any way you like, just like you would use your paycheck. For example, it can help you pay for planned expenses like groceries, mortgage, or utilities, as well as unplanned expenses like medical bills.

Depending on your plan, some or all of your disability benefits may be subject to income taxes. You should speak to your employer or personal tax advisor for more information about your specific plan. Be on the lookout for additional information about this coverage from your employer. Your employer may offer short term disability, long term disability, or both.
